3. "The airfield at Babie Doly consists of three merged areas, which are not to be confused with the three security zones:
- a. The first area consists of the old Polish airfield called Rumia Wogorze.
  - b. The second area is the old Polish airfield called Babie Doly, which has lent its name now to the entire complex.
  - c. The third area comprises the land lying between these two airfields which the Germans started to develop during World War II.
4. Babie Doly lies close to the coast. There are special closed hangars for the use of hydroplanes. A tunnel runs 5 km. from the naval port of Gdynia to Babie Doly. The terrain is hilly, and at some points this tunnel runs 40 m underground. The tunnel was built by the Germans. The Poles built a narrow-gauge railway within it. They also covered the entire tunnel with reinforced concrete.
